Company Positioned for Long Term Goals

LITTLETON, Mass., June 3 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- LiveWire Mobile, Inc. (Pinksheets: LVWR) a world leader in ringback, mobile music and managed personalization services, today announced two key personnel appointments which round out the company's senior management team and increase the company's ability to execute on its long term goals.

The company named Dean Foulis as its chief technology officer – a new position – and promoted Adam Thibault to vice president of sales. Together with Todd Donahue, chief financial officer, and Matthew Stecker, president and chief executive officer, LiveWire Mobile is in its strongest position yet to oversee an expansion of the company's product lines, support its global mobile operator customers and partners and drive sales.

With more than 20 years of technology experience, Mr. Foulis will be responsible for overseeing the company's technical and product development teams as well as customer operations. Mr. Thibault's responsibilities have expanded to include business development while focusing on growing LiveWire Mobile's worldwide customer base. Mr. Donahue will promote continuity amongst the team by continuing in his CFO role.

"In the past several months, we have seen significant expansion and interest in our mobile personalization services and platform offerings. As such, we have built our team by identifying and retaining the highest performing officers already with the company, promoting talented candidates internally and looking outside the company to fill targeted needs," said LiveWire Mobile CEO Matthew Stecker. "I have known and worked with Dean for many years and have been impressed with Adam's vision and ability to drive new business for LiveWire Mobile. I am confident their knowledge and experience in the mobile space will allow us to continue our momentum and achieve the company's long-term goals. Together with Todd Donahue, our CFO who has been with us for three years, we believe that we have the right leadership team for the future."

His proven skills in software development led him to several integral positions at The Whitehead Institute, Millennium Pharmaceuticals, Marble Associates, HBOC and Synetics. Mr. Foulis received his Bachelor of Science in electrical engineering from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Mr. Thibault, previously senior account manager, joined LiveWire Mobile in March 2008 through the acquisition of Groove Mobile, Inc. Mr. Donahue joined LiveWire Mobile in February 2007. Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Donahue served in senior finance and operations roles at Aspen Technology, Inc., a global software and solutions provider where he served as vice president of product operations and vice president of finance. Mr. Donahue began his career at Deloitte and Touche LLP in assurance and advisory services. He holds a BSBA in management from Boston University, an MBA from Babson College and is a certified public accountant.

Mr. Stecker brings considerable experience to LiveWire Mobile as an operating executive and strategic consultant to the telecommunications industry.
