

MIIAtech Appoints 151 Ventures and Feintuch Communications for Integrated Business Development, Marketing and Public Relations Campaign

NEW YORK and BRUSSELS, July 12, 2011 /PRNewswire/ -- MIIAtech, a next generation search and analytics software company, has selected 151 Ventures and Feintuch Communications to conduct an integrated business development, marketing and public relations campaign.

Headquartered in Brussels and with offices in Hong Kong and New York, MIIAtech is preparing for its formal market entry later this summer. The company's core technology platform, called Tautona™, understands the meaning and context of words and phrases, allowing businesses to search for and quickly find information hidden in large, multi-lingual enterprise databases. Tautona addresses the problem of information overload and inadequate searches for information.

"Our developers have been hard at work for several years now, building a software platform that helps companies to find and utilize the information hidden in their complex IT infrastructures," said Stephen Lernout, chief executive officer, MIIAtech. "Partnering with the experienced business executives at 151 Ventures and the PR team at Feintuch Communications should prove valuable to us as we introduce our technology into several vertical market segments."

"By understanding the meaning of text across multiple languages, MIIAtech's search and analytics platform has the ability to revolutionize knowledge and information sharing across the global enterprise," said Bill Rom, managing partner, 151 Ventures. "We're excited to partner with MIIAtech to build out the company's sales and distribution channels and to bring the company's technology to market in North America."

"MIIAtech's Natural Language Processing and semantic search technology has the potential to be a game-changer for knowledge workers, sales persons and executives seeking to locate the precise information hidden within their enterprises," said Henry Feintuch, president, Feintuch Communications. "We're proud to be part of the MIIAtech team and to utilize our experience in supporting dozens of companies in software development, artificial intelligence, technology associations and others."
