

Kramer Introduces Online Quiz to Help Integrators Select the Most Appropriate AVoIP Product Choices

CLINTON, N.J., July 28, 2025 — Kramer, a recognized provider of audio-visual solutions, today launched AVoIPQuiz.com, an online quiz designed to assist integrators and system managers in quickly identifying suitable Kramer AVoIP products for a variety of common applications.

The quiz guides users through a series of targeted questions covering key factors such as application type, video resolution, latency requirements, audio integration and multiview configurations. Based on responses, the tool suggests Kramer product families aligned with the user's project parameters.

AVoIPQuiz.com offers a practical entry point for professionals seeking to familiarize themselves with Kramer's expansive portfolio of AVoIP solutions. It focuses on an array of applications including K-12 and higher education environments, corporate meeting spaces, government control rooms, hospitality venues, medical imaging and esports arenas.

"Selecting the right AVoIP solution can be complex given our wide range of products to meet varying system demands," said Amit Ancikovsky, president, Kramer Americas. "This quiz is designed to streamline the initial stages of product evaluation by helping integrators narrow their options based on real-world project needs."
