MILPITAS, Calif., August 29, 2022 – XL Construction, a leading Northern California builder, announced it has appointed Elly Hoever as vice president of finance.

In her role, Hoever will lead the company's finance and accounting departments, working in collaboration with XL Chief Financial Officer Tom Humbert. She will be responsible for overseeing all of the company's accounting transactions and financial reporting, analyzing quarterly and annual results and acting as an advisor for the senior management team.

Previously, Hoever was the CFO at Sabor Farms, where she led key improvement initiatives including the design and implementation of automated sales processes for the company. During her career, she has also worked as a financial controller at Automated Technologies and spent 14 years at Driscoll Strawberry in various positions including director and vice president, finance; interim CFO; and vice president, corporate treasurer.

"We're fortunate to have Elly join us. Her previous financial management experience at large companies augments our already strong accounting team and enables us to continue expanding our financial reporting capabilities as XL continues to grow," said Humbert.

Hoever has a Bachelor of Science degree in business with a focus in accounting from Virginia Tech. She holds an active Certified Treasury Professional (CTP) license and previously held a California Certified Public Accountant (CPA) license.

She has been active in various professional affiliations and community organizations which include speaking at Association for Financial Professionals (AFP) conferences and serving as chair of the finance committee with the YMCA – Central Branch's board of managers.
